1. The full text explaining how the university handles student complaints can be found in the 2022 academic year Student Handbook.
2. The Student Handbook also includes information on services that uphold the right to education, such as the student union and student council.
3. The University Rules stipulate that “when students, the student union, and/or other self-governing student organizations deem that the punishment and/or other measures/resolutions implemented by the university are considered illegal and/or inappropriate, and negatively impact student rights and/or interests, and that they are able to provide evidence, they may file an official complaint.”
